1. KEY POINTS TO NOTE

In the context of the 20th anniversary of the adoption of the Family Reunification Directive (2003/86/EC)<sup>1</sup> and in light of recent Court of Justice of the European Union (CJEU) and European Court of Human Rights (ECtHR) case-law, this inform examines the legislation and practice in European Migration Network (EMN) Member and Observer Countries on aspects of family reunification for beneficiaries of international protection. Several key points emerge:

- Submission of the application for family reunification varies across countries, including whether the sponsor or the family member can submit the application, the timeline for the examination of the application, and the modalities for its submission (e.g. in person or electronically).
- EMN Member and Observer Countries require certain documents and evidence to be submitted with the application. Documents proving family ties are required in all countries. In the absence of official documentation, alternative means to establish family ties include requests for additional documents, interviews with the sponsor/applicant, DNA testing, and/or a written declaration/oath.
- In some EMN Member Countries, pursuant to Article 12(1) of the Family Reunification Directive, if the application is submitted later than three months after the applicant was granted protection, there are additional requirements linked to adequate standards of accommodation, sickness insurance, and/or regular and sufficient financial resources.<sup>2</sup> In Estonia, Luxembourg and Poland, this period is set at six months, while in Belgium, it is 12 months.
- When the parent sponsor lodges a family reunification application for a minor turning 18, some countries<sup>3</sup> allow children to retain the right to family reunification if they come of age during the examination of their sponsoring parent's asylum application, within a certain period of being granted protection status.
- Several EMN Member Countries<sup>4</sup> accept the date of submission of the application for family reunification to determine whether an unmarried child is a minor, rather than the date of the decision on that application.

2. INTRODUCTION

Family reunification is a very important right for refugees and other persons benefiting from some form of protection. It restores part of the normalcy of their lives and is one of the main reasons for immigration to the European Union (EU).<sup>5</sup> In many EMN Member and Observer Countries, family reunification accounts for the largest share of legal migration. The adoption of the Family Reunification Directive (2003/86/EC)<sup>6</sup> introduced minimum standards at EU level for the conditions under which family reunification can take place, as well as the rights of family members.<sup>7</sup>

2023 marks the 20th anniversary of the adoption of the Family Reunification Directive. In those 20 years, the migration and asylum climate has evolved, while jurisprudence by the CJEU and, where relevant, the ECtHR, has provided further legal clarifications on the application of national policy and practice on family reunification.

3. SCOPE OF THE INFORM

This inform focuses on family reunification for beneficiaries of international protection, in line with recital 8<sup>8</sup> and Chapter V of the Family Reunification Directive. Article 3(2)(c) excludes beneficiaries of subsidiary protection from its scope, but their situation was examined in the comprehensive EMN study on 'Family reunification of third-country nationals in the EU' in 2017,<sup>9</sup> in a previous EMN ad hoc query (AHQ),<sup>10</sup> and in a recent publication of the European Council on Refugees and Exiles (ECRE).<sup>11</sup> Where appropriate, this inform differentiates between the situation of refugees and that of beneficiaries of subsidiary protection. Based on Article 3(3), which stipulates that the Family Reunification Directive does not regulate the situation of third-country nationals who are family members of EU citizens, family reunification with EU citizens is excluded from the scope.

This inform not only compares national practices between EMN Member Countries<sup>12</sup> bound by the Family Reunification Directive, but also between those not covered by the Directive (such as Ireland) and the EMN Observer Countries (Norway and Serbia) that took part in this inform. It looks specifically at the procedures in place for applying for family reunification and how these have evolved in light of post-2017 case-law before the CJEU and, where relevant, the ECtHR, notably with regard to:

- 1) Overall submission, processing and examination of applications for family reunification;
- 2) Documentation to be provided as part of the application;
- 3) Family reunification with/for children coming of age.

This inform covers the timeframe 2017 to June 2023 with a view to updating and complementing earlier EMN studies and informs, as well as the recent ECRE report.<sup>13</sup>

4. SUBMISSION, PROCESSING AND EXAMINATION OF APPLICATIONS

This section focuses on several aspects related to the submission, processing and examination of the application for family reunification for beneficiaries of international protection.

Eligible statuses

In some EMN Member and Observer Countries,<sup>14</sup> both recognised refugees and persons granted subsidiary protection have the right to request family reunification, without any distinction in the scope of their rights or applicable procedures. In other countries,<sup>15</sup> only recognised refugees have the right to apply for family reunification.

In some countries,<sup>16</sup> persons with subsidiary protection status are granted the right to family reunification after residing in the country for a certain period of time. In Latvia, this period is two years and in Austria, it is three years. In Sweden, it is not only based on the status but also on whether the person has a permanent or a temporary residence permit with well-founded prospects of being granted a lasting residence permit.

Eligible family members

Article 4(1) of the Family Reunification Directive provides that Member States shall authorise the entry and residence of the sponsor's spouse and the minor children of the sponsor and of their spouse, including adopted children. As per Article 4(2), Member States may also authorise the entry and residence of first-degree relatives in the direct ascending line of the sponsor or their spouse, where they are dependent on them and do not enjoy proper family support in the country of origin, as well as adult unmarried children of the sponsor or their spouse, where they are objectively unable to provide for their own needs on account of their state of health. Article 10 specifies provisions on family reunification for refugees.

Eligible family members are specified in national legislation and typically include members of nuclear or immediate family, such as spouses, children, and parents of the refugee and/or beneficiary of subsidiary protection. The exact definitions of eligible family members differ across the EMN Member and Observer Countries. Annex 1 provides a detailed overview of the eligible family members in each EMN Member and Observer Country.

Submission of the application: who can apply?

According to Article 5(1) of the Family Reunification Directive, Member States shall determine whether an application shall be submitted either by the sponsor or by their family member. In some EMN Member and Observer Countries,<sup>17</sup> the person granted protection status (the sponsor) must submit the application for family reunification. By contrast, in other countries,<sup>18</sup> the family member wishing to be reunited with the beneficiary is required to submit the application. In Poland, both a sponsor and a member of a separated family may apply for family reunification. In the Netherlands, although the sponsor typically applies for family reunification, it is also possible for the family member to apply at the Dutch consulate or embassy in their country of origin, but this rarely occurs in practice.

Submission by a family member

Where the family member is required to submit the application, this is typically done as a visa application at the competent diplomatic mission, embassy, or consular office abroad.<sup>19</sup> In Belgium, the family member applies directly for a national long-stay visa, type D. In the Czech Republic, family members of a refugee submit an application for a long-term residence permit for the purpose of family reunification, while family members in

Although FI allows family reunification for both categories, family members of beneficiaries of subsidiary protection must always have sufficient financial resources. If the sponsor has received refugee status, sufficient financial resources are required only if the application is submitted later than three months after the sponsor was granted refugee status. the case of subsidiary protection must first apply for a long-stay visa and then for a long-term residence permit for family purposes (this is stipulated in national law). In Lithuania, family members seeking a temporary residence permit for family reunification purpose have two options: they can apply through an external service provider if currently outside the country or directly through the Migration Department if already within Lithuania. In Sweden, the application for a residence permit can be done via the e-service or by regular mail. The application is addressed to the Swedish Migration Agency or a Swedish Mission Abroad. In some countries,<sup>20</sup> in exceptional cases, applications can also be submitted when the family member is already on the territory of the country.

Box 1. Application in France

In France, family members submit their visa application directly to a French consular post abroad. Family ties and the identity of applicants are then checked by the consular services as part of the visa application procedure. If the application is in conformity, a positive decision is taken and a visa sticker is affixed to the travel document by the consulate. This sticker is valid for three months and allows family members to travel to France to obtain a residence permit from the prefectural authorities.

Family members of refugees receive a 10-year residence permit. The family members of a beneficiary of subsidiary protection receive a multiannual residence permit identical to the permit issued to the sponsor.

In Latvia, a prior invitation from the sponsor may be required to start a family reunification procedure, and family members must present an invitation from the sponsor to the diplomatic or consular mission, confirmed by the Office of Citizenship and Migration Affairs. In the Slovak Republic, consent of the sponsor is required when applying for family reunification under the Asylum Act. In Estonia, the application for family reunification must be submitted to the Police and Border Guard Board (PBGB) for a decision on whether family reunification is allowed. After the decision, the relevant embassy is informed and the family member(s) can submit a visa application to travel to Estonia. After arrival, they should submit an application for a residence permit at the earliest opportunity but no later than within six months.

Family members applying for reunification are typically required to submit the application in person.<sup>21</sup> In Finland, after filing an electronic application, the applicant must visit the Finnish diplomatic mission in person within three months for identification purposes. Other countries<sup>22</sup> have put in place electronic submission processes. Following the recent CJEU judgment in the Afrin case (C-1/23 PPU), Member States should provide other means of submission under exceptional circumstances.

Submission by the sponsor

Following the granting of their protection status, the sponsor can submit an application for family reunification to the relevant national authorities.<sup>23</sup> The submission can be done in person,<sup>24</sup> online via an electronic platform,<sup>25</sup> post<sup>26</sup> or email.<sup>27</sup> In Italy, it is submitted electronically to a dedicated website of the Ministry of the Interior. In Serbia, the application is submitted personally by the sponsor to the competent authority on a prescribed form.

Box 2. Application process in Ireland

In Ireland, sponsors who are beneficiaries of international protection may, within 12 months of receiving their refugee status, apply in writing to the Family Reunification Unit of Immigration Service Delivery. They are required to provide basic information, including their name, their personal ID number, the date on which they received their declaration of status, their address, and the details of their family member(s). Once this preliminary information is received, a questionnaire is sent to the sponsor, requesting further information and documentation. This must be returned within 28 days.

Alternative ways of application submission

In the majority of EMN Member and Observer Countries,<sup>28</sup> no alternative means are provided by national legislation or administrative procedure to submit an application for family reunification, including in exceptional circumstances. However, some countries have exceptions in place.<sup>29</sup>

Belgium, Lithuania, Luxembourg (exceptional cases), Malta, Poland and Norway all allow the application to be submitted when the family member is already on the territory of the country. In Belgium, the requirement for the applicant to be present in person to submit the application can also be waived. By way of derogation, the family member who is in a situation where it is impossible or excessively difficult to appear in person can submit their application by email to the Belgian competent diplomatic or consular post and appear at a later stage of the procedure.<sup>30</sup> In Germany, if application is not possible in the country of residence due to circumstances beyond the applicant's control, applying at a different German embassy or consulate is permitted in exceptional circumstances. Similarly, in France, applicants can justify unforeseeable and compelling reasons which prevented them from submitting their application in the consular district where they usually reside. However, habitual or occasional residence will be required to ensure that the applicant appears in person to submit the visa application

Box 3. CJEU case C-1/23 PPU

Afrin (C-1/23 PPU) concerned Belgian procedures and practices in applying for family reunification in Belgium. The Court concluded that EU law precludes national legislation that requires, without exception, an application for family reunification to be submitted in person at a competent diplomatic post. However, the legislation may provide for the possibility of requiring applicants to appear in person at a later stage of the application process. It ruled that national legislation requiring the sponsor's family members' physical presence at a Member State's diplomatic or consular post is not acceptable, as it infringes the right to respect for family unity and makes it impossible to exercise the right to family reunification. However, Member States may require physical presence at a later stage of the procedure but must facilitate such appearance and reduce the number of appearances to the minimum to promote family reunification and protect fundamental rights.

Submission starting point and time limit to issue a decision

The date of obtaining a protection status is typically considered as the starting point when the sponsor or family member can apply for family reunification.<sup>31</sup> The procedure differs across EMN Member and Observer Countries, depending on whether the sponsor or the family member submits the application. In Belgium (where the application is submitted by the family member), the submission date is the day that all required documents proving that the applicant meets the legal conditions are submitted. When the file is complete, the diplomatic mission or consular post issues a certificate stating that the application has been lodged, thereby confirming the date from which the legal process starts.

In some countries<sup>32</sup> where the sponsor who is already on the territory of the host country submits the application, prior authorisation might be required from the sponsor, which is sent to the respective diplomatic or consular representation in the third country to initiate submissions by family members, as in the example of Italy below.

Box 4. Application submission process in Italy

In Italy, the procedure begins with the electronic submission of the request for prior authorisation to the Territorial Office of the Government (Prefecture). The period for issuing the authorisation is 90 days. Once released, the authorisation is automatically transmitted to the Italian consular authority for the family member to apply for an entry visa. Family members must produce the certificate attesting the family relationship, translated and legalised (e.g. marriage, minor age, any necessary civil status). The entry visa must be issued within 30 days of the submission of the application by family members residing abroad. In the event of incomplete documentation, the Consular Diplomatic Mission sends a notice indicating the missing documentation and the deadline for its submission. The notice pauses the 30-day period for processing the request.

Article 5(4) of the Family Reunification Directive stipulates that the competent authorities of the Member State shall give the person who has submitted the application written notification of the decision as soon as possible and in any event no later than nine months from the date on which the application was lodged. In exceptional circumstances linked to the complexity of the examination of the application, the time limit may be extended. The time limit differs significantly across EMN Member and Observer Countries (see Figure 1).

Table 1: Time periods for issuing a decision on an application for family reunification with beneficiaries of international protection

Time limit for issuing a decision	EMN Member and Observer Countries

60 days	IT, PL
3 months	DE, LT, NL (90 days), SK (90 days, under the Act on Residence of Foreigners)
6 months	SK (under the Asylum Act)
9 months	BE, CY, CZ (270 days), EL, FI, LU, MT
120 days	SI <sup>34</sup>
No defined time limit	BG, IE

In Portugal, in practice, it can take from eight to 11 months until a final decision is taken. In the Netherlands, the period for issuing a decision on an application for family reunification with beneficiaries of international protection is 90 days, which can be prolonged up to a maximum of three months. Currently, the period is extended as a standard procedure, meaning that the de facto period for issuing a decision is six months. In Bulgaria and Ireland, there is no defined time limit for issuing a decision on an application for family reunification.

In some EMN Member and Observer Countries,<sup>35</sup> in exceptional circumstances linked to the complexity of the examination of the application, the period may be extended (Article 5(4) Family Reunification Directive). In Belgium, the time limit may be prolonged twice, by periods of three months, with a reasoned decision notified to the applicant.

5. DOCUMENTATION

Regardless of whether the application is submitted by the sponsor or family member, all EMN Member and Observer Countries require certain documents and evidence to be submitted with the application. Article 5(2) of the Family Reunification Directive stipulates that the application shall be accompanied by documentation evidencing the family relationship and certified copies of family member(s)' travel documents (see Annex 2 for a detailed list of documents required).

Proof of family ties

Proof of pre-existing family ties between the sponsor and family member is the main type of documentation required for family reunification in all EMN Member and Observer Countries. This typically includes marriage certificates, birth certificates, registered partnership certificates, or any other official documents attesting family ties (see Annex 2).

In the event that the beneficiary of international protection cannot present official documents that prove the family relationship, Article 11 (2) of the Family Reunification Directive requires Member States to take into account other types of evidence of the existence of such a relationship. It may, in addition, and in accordance with Article 5(2), carry out further investigations, such as interviews with the sponsor and members of their family or any investigations it deems necessary.

Request for additional documents

As per Article 11(2) of the Family Reunification Directive, where a refugee cannot provide official documentation proving the family relationship, Member States shall take into account other evidence of the existence of such relationship, to be assessed in accordance with national law. A decision rejecting an application may not be based solely on the fact that documentation is lacking.

Where official documents to prove a family relationship cannot be obtained, other documents are permissible in some countries.<sup>40</sup> In Cyprus, for example, family photos, letters, or statutory declarations can be accepted as evidence proving family links. Luxembourg's Immigration Law foresees that family bonds can be proved by any type of document that establishes the identity or nationality of the family member, family links, and/or proves the veracity of the applicant's statements. In some countries, the information obtained during the examination of the asylum application can also be taken into consideration.<sup>41</sup>

<sup>33</sup> When no additional documentation or interview is needed, the deadline is 30 days from submission of the complete application. When additional documentation, interview or some other evidence is needed, the deadline is 60 days from submission of the complete application.

<sup>34</sup> During the special examination procedure to determine if there are reasons for refusing to issue the permit, a decision on the application must be issued within 180 days at the latest.

Box 5. 'Integral assessment' in the Netherlands

In the Netherlands, an 'integral assessment' is carried out in family reunification procedures, based on the submitted documents and statements of the sponsor. This means that alternative documentation and declarations by the sponsor are also taken into consideration when assessing the identity and existence of a family relationship in a specific case. The weight given to certain documents is determined by several factors: 1) the (type of) authority that issued the document; 2) judgement of the Bureau Documents of the Immigration and Naturalisation Service (IND), which examines the authenticity of the documentation; 3) administrative practice in the country of origin; and 4) content of the documents.

Interviews with the sponsor and/or family members

Article 5(2) of the Family Reunification Directive stipulates that in order to obtain evidence of a family relationship, Member States may carry out interviews with the sponsor and their family members, as well as other investigations deemed necessary.

In the absence of sufficient documentation, some EMN Member and Observer Countries<sup>42</sup> carry out interviews with the sponsor and/or family members. In Malta, interviews with the sponsor and their family members can form part of an investigation to determine whether there is a family relationship.

In Greece, the Asylum Service may address a relevant request to the competent Greek consular authority to interview the refugee's family members, on the basis of questions sent by the Asylum Service. Alternatively, a member of the Asylum Service can carry out the interview via teleconference. The Greek consular office prepares the interview minutes, which are sent to the Asylum Service to decide on the case.

In the Netherlands, the asylum case worker may hold additional identifying interviews with the sponsor and/or their family members abroad. These interviews can be held if the IND has doubts as to the alleged identity or the existence of the family law or actual relationship, or if the case worker has questions about the documentation submitted. In principle, these interviews are held by the case worker by videoconference, facilitated by the Dutch diplomatic or consular post, or, in some cases, the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) or the International Organization for Migration (IOM). If a videoconference is not possible, an employee at the Dutch representation may carry out the interview under instructions of the case worker at the IND.

Box 6. UNHCR provision of assistance in Belgium in collaboration with Myria

In Belgium, the UNHCR, in collaboration with its implementing partner, Myria, provides first line assistance with the application process to forcibly displaced and stateless persons and their family members by email, telephone or in person. The UNHCR coordinates contact with key partners involved in individual cases by liaising with the Immigration Office, the Belgian diplomatic post, external service providers and civil society organisations (CSOs). In collaboration with its offices abroad, UNHCR Belgium intervenes in individual cases. For example, it may provide assessments related to protection, refugee status determination, best interest of the child, medical or dependency, etc. It may also carry out an interview if required by the Belgian authorities, collect documentation, or provide technical expertise to support lawyers. It monitors Belgian authorities' compliance with refugee family reunification obligations and continuously advocates directly with national authorities to ensure that procedures are flexible and take full account of circumstances, vulnerabilities and other specific concerns.

DNA testing

Several countries<sup>43</sup> apply DNA testing to establish family links, typically as a last resort. In such cases, the applicant and their family member must consent to take the DNA test. In Austria, if the applicant fails to provide unobjectionable evidence in the form of documents or other suitable and equivalent means of certification, and if the investigation procedure has also been exhausted in other respects, they are allowed a DNA analysis.

In Greece, the Asylum Service or the Hellenic Police may request genetic material for a DNA analysis to verify the family relationship/bond between the refugee and their family members. The analysis is limited exclusively to the data that are absolutely necessary for the verification of the family bond, and is carried out by the Directorate of Criminological Investigations of the Hellenic Police. Similarly, in the Netherlands, DNA testing can be carried out in the case of a biological nuclear family member. The sponsor must consent to the DNA test and the use of the results during the family reunification procedure. Thereafter, the family members can hand over their DNA sample at a diplomatic or consular post of the Netherlands in the country of origin or residence, in some cases supported by the IOM.

Declaration/oath

In Bulgaria, Cyprus and the Slovak Republic, if the sponsor cannot present official documents proving family ties, they are required to sign an oath declaring the family relationship. In the Slovak Republic, if the applicant is unable to prove such documents for demonstrable reasons, according to the Civil Code, they can declare on oath the existence of the marriage and that it was still valid before leaving the country of origin.

Proof of accommodation, sickness insurance, and stable and regular resources

Article 12(1) of the Family Reunification Directive allows Member States to require the refugee to meet conditions related to suitable accommodation, insurance and stable and regular resources, if the application for family reunification is not submitted within a period of three months after granting the refugee status.

Some EMN Member and Observer Countries have opted not to apply Article 12(1), which means that no additional conditions are imposed. In the countries that do apply Article 12(1),<sup>44</sup> if the application is submitted later than three months after the sponsor was granted protection (six months in the case of Estonia, Luxembourg and Poland), there are additional requirements linked to adequate standards of accommodation, sickness insurance, and/or regular and sufficient financial resources. In Finland, family members of beneficiaries of subsidiary protection must always have sufficient financial resources, while those with refugee status are so required only if the application is submitted later than three months after the sponsor was granted refugee status. While additional requirements apply in some countries<sup>45</sup> irrespective of whether the sponsor is an unaccompanied minor, other countries<sup>46</sup> exempt unaccompanied minors recognised as refugees from these additional requirements.

Box 7. Additional requirements in Luxembourg

If the application for family reunification is submitted later than six months after the date when international protection was granted, Luxembourg imposes additional requirements linked to accommodation and stable, regular and sufficient resources.

Appropriate accommodation to host the family member(s) is defined as a floor area of at least 12 m<sup>2</sup> for the first occupant and 12 m<sup>2</sup> per additional occupant, with natural light through windows that can be opened and closed properly, and which measure at least 1/10 of the floor area, heating, running water, electricity, etc.

The Immigration Law requires proof that the applicant has stable, regular, and sufficient resources (salary, wages, income from assets) to support themselves and the family members under their care, without having to resort to social welfare. The level of resources is assessed with reference to the average monthly minimum wage of an unskilled worker over a period of 12 months (EUR 2 508.40). The prospective assessment of the likelihood of maintaining stable, regular, and sufficient resources is based on a prognosis that the resources will reasonably be available during the year following the date of submission of the application for family reunification, so that the sponsor does not have to resort to social assistance. The Minister responsible for Immigration and Asylum may consider the sponsor's income during the six months preceding the application.

6. FAMILY REUNIFICATION WITH CHILDREN

This section explores the requirements in EMN Member and Observer Countries for family reunification with/for children coming of age, given recent CJEU judgements.

Timeframe for the parent sponsor to lodge an application with a minor turning 18

Recent CJEU judgments C-133/19, C-136/19, C-137/19 have set out that, for the purpose of determining whether an unmarried child is a minor as provided in Article 4(1)(c) of the Family Reunification Directive, in cases where that third-country national attains their majority in the course of the administrative procedure reviewing the family reunification request, or in the course of judicial proceedings subsequently challenging a refusal to grant family reunification, Member States should consider the date of the submission of the application for entry and residence for the purpose of family reunification for minor children, and not that of the decision on that application by the competent authorities, after an action brought against a decision rejecting such an application.

Box 8. CJEU cases C-133/19, C-136/19 and C-137/19

On 16 July 2020, the CJEU published its judgments in cases C-133/19, C-136/19 and C-137/19<sup>47</sup> on the interpretation of the right to family reunification of a sponsor with their minor child (Article 4(1)(c) Family Reunification Directive) in cases where applicants reach the age of majority during the course of proceedings. The Court observed that the provisions of the Family Reunification Directive must be interpreted and applied in light of the right to respect for private and family life and in conjunction with the principle of the best interests of the child. It concluded that using the date on which a competent authority decides on the application for family reunification as the reference date for assessing the age of an applicant would be inconsistent with the objectives pursued by the Family Reunification Directive. Therefore, the date which should be referenced for the purpose of determining whether an unmarried third-country national or refugee is a minor child is that of the submission of the application for entry and residence for the purpose of family reunification for minor children, and not that of the decision on that application by the competent authorities of that Member State, as the case may be, after an action brought against a decision rejecting such an application.

Box 9. CJEU case C-279/20

On 1 August 2022, the CJEU ruled on case C-279/20, where the applicant had reached the age of majority before her father (sponsor) had obtained a residence permit as a refugee. The Family Reunification Directive states that minor children must be below the age of majority but does not specify the point in time to be considered in assessing whether this condition is satisfied. The Court recalled that the objective pursued by the Family Reunification Directive is to promote family reunification and that the Directive also aims to give protection to minors, thus Member States are obliged to have regard to the child's best interests as recognised by the EU Charter of Fundamental Rights. It held that considering the time when the authorities of the Member States decided on the asylum application would be inconsistent with the objectives pursued by that Directive and with the child's best interests.

The CJEU concluded that in order to determine whether a child of a sponsor who has been granted refugee status is a minor child, where the child has attained the age of majority before the parent sponsor was granted refugee status and before the application for family reunification was submitted, the date to consider should be the date of submission of the parent sponsor's asylum application, provided that an application for family reunification was submitted within three months of the recognition of the parent sponsor's refugee status.

In several EMN Member and Observer Countries,<sup>48</sup> children retain the right to family reunification even if they come of age during the examination of their sponsoring parent's asylum application, as long as the sponsoring parent submits the application for reunification within a certain period after being granted the protection status. This period is set at three months<sup>49</sup> in most countries, six months in Luxembourg and 12 months in Belgium.<sup>50</sup> In France, the three-month deadline applies when the child reaches 19 between the date of filing the asylum application and the date their parent obtains the protection.

Age threshold for dependent adult children

As per Article 4(2)(b) of the Family Reunification Directive, Member States may authorise the entry and residence of adult unmarried children of the sponsor or their spouse, where they are objectively unable to provide for their own needs on account of their state of health. Article 10(2) stipulates that Member States may authorise family reunification of other family members not referenced in Article 4, if they are dependent on the refugee.

Several EMN Member and Observer Countries<sup>51</sup> allow family reunification with dependent adult children. In some countries,<sup>52</sup> this is when the dependent adult child is unable to provide for themselves due to serious health reasons and there is no age threshold requirement. In Luxembourg, in such cases, the sponsor is required to provide medical certificates proving that the family member is incapable of providing for their own needs because of their health condition, and that they depend on the sponsor or spouse.

In other EMN Member and Observer Countries,<sup>53</sup> dependent adult children are not eligible for family reunification with their parent sponsor. This means that adult unmarried children fall outside of the definition of family members (see Annex 1). In Ireland, which is not covered by the Family Reunification Directive, while dependent adult children are not eligible for family reunification under the International Protection Act 2015,<sup>54</sup> a beneficiary can apply for family reunification under the general non-European Economic Area (EEA) family reunification policy, which has no age threshold. In Lithuania, cases of family reunification with dependent adult children are reviewed individually, and all relevant circumstances are considered. In Norway, family reunification can be granted to adult children up to 21 years of age.

In Germany and Sweden, as a rule, children are only eligible for family reunification until they reach the age of majority, and only in cases of exceptional hardship can adult children (any age) apply for reunification. Circumstances that justify such a family dependency can only result from individual peculiarities of the case (e.g. illness, disability, need for care, psychological distress). Circumstances arising from the general living conditions in the country of origin of the family member joining the migrant are not taken into account.

In Croatia, other relatives can be considered family member of a third-country national who has been granted refugee status or subsidiary protection if there are special personal or serious humanitarian reasons for family reunification, which can thus also cover adult children. In Portugal, adult children who are dependent on the couple or one of the spouses and who are single and studying at an educational establishment in Portugal are also eligible for family reunification.

In the Netherlands, there is no clear age threshold for dependent adult children to be eligible for family reunification with their parent sponsor. The older the dependent child, the higher the burden of proof on the parent sponsor and the child to show the plausibility of the assumed dependency.

48 BE, EE, FI (only if the sponsor is granted refugee status), FR, LT, LU, NL, PT, SI, SE.

49 FI, FR, LT, NL, PT, SI, SE.

50 In Belgium, when the minor applicant turns 18 (shortly) after the parent receives the international protection, the application should be submitted before they turn 18.

51 BE, BG, CZ, DE, EL, FI (in exceptional cases), HR, IT, LU, NL, PT, SE (only in exceptional cases where there is an established dependency), SI, SK.

52 BE, BG, CZ, EE, EL, IT, LU, SE, SK (under the Act on Residence of Foreigners - temporary residence permit).

53 AT, CY, FR, IE, LT, LV, MT, PL and RS.

54 The specific situation of vulnerable persons must be considered.

Family reunification for unaccompanied minors coming of age during the international protection procedure

In some EMN Member and Observer Countries,<sup>55</sup> for age determination, unaccompanied minors who turn 18 during their international protection procedure may apply for family reunification within three months of obtaining their protection status. In Luxembourg and Poland, this timeframe is set at six months. In Belgium, the three-month period may be extended if special circumstances objectively excuse the late submission of the application. In Slovenia, this applies only for first-degree family members. If the applicant wishes to reunite with family members other than those of the first degree, they shall be considered an adult.

In other countries,<sup>56</sup> the date to be referenced for the purpose of determining whether the applicant is a minor child is that of the submission of the application for family reunification (rather than the decision). In Ireland, a discretionary policy on minors over the official age is in place and applicants may be accepted as minors for the purposes of family reunification if they are unmarried.

Box 10. CJEU case C-550/16

On 12 April 2018, the CJEU ruled on case C-550/16, where the applicant was an unaccompanied minor refugee below the age of 18 at the time of entry into the Member State and at the time of application for asylum but who had reached 18 by the time of the decision granting asylum. She applied for family reunification for her parents and her three minor brothers, which was rejected on the ground that she was no longer a minor at the date on which the application for family reunification was submitted.

The Court concluded that Article 2(f) of the Family Reunification Directive of 22 September 2003 on the right to family reunification, read in conjunction with Article 10(3)(a), must be interpreted as meaning that a third-country national or stateless person who is below the age of 18 at the time of their entry into the territory of a Member State and submission of their asylum application in that State, but who, in the course of the asylum procedure, attains the age of majority and is thereafter granted refugee status must be regarded as a 'minor' for the purposes of that provision.

Interpretation of the concept 'Real family relationship'

Pursuant to Article 16 (1)(b) of the Family Reunification Directive, Member States may reject an application for entry and residence for the purpose of family reunification, or, if appropriate, withdraw or refuse to renew a family member's residence permit where the sponsor and their family member(s) do not or no longer live in a real marital or family relationship.

Several EMN Member and Observer Countries<sup>57</sup> reported that the concept of 'real family relationship' was not applied and assessed in their countries, nor had they experienced any such cases. Other countries<sup>58</sup> may assess the family relationship based on the circumstances of the individual case.

In Belgium and Finland, as a general rule, parents and children must live together. However, if parents and children no longer live at the same address, the central authority will not terminate the stay without first hearing the parties concerned. The decision will take into account the family contact and ties maintained, length of stay, efforts to integrate (language skills, work, training, etc.) and ties maintained with the country of origin.

Box 11. CJEU case C-279/20 and joined cases C-273/20 and C-355/20

On 1 August 2022, the CJEU ruled on case C-279/20 and joined cases C-273/20 and C-355/20 on the interpretation of the Family Reunification Directive. On the assessment of a real family relationship, the Court found that a first-degree relationship in the direct ascending line is not sufficient on its own. However, it is not necessary for the child sponsor and the parent concerned to cohabit in a single household or to live under the same roof, or for the child sponsor and parent concerned to support each other financially in order to qualify for family reunification. Occasional visits, insofar as they are possible, and regular contact of any kind may be sufficient to consider that those persons are reconstructing personal and emotional relationships and to establish the existence of a real family relationship.

The Court acknowledged that these families were unable to lead a real family life during their period of separation resulting from the specific situation of their children as refugees and that it could not be presumed that any family relationship between a parent and the children immediately ceases to exist as soon as the minor child reaches the age of majority.
